Veteran Explosive Is Still Fighting

The world's oldest explosive, black powder (gunpowder) has been called from its peacetime pursuits for active service, lending a hand to its bigger and more powerful brothers, smokeless powder, TNT and cordite, relates an editorial in the July issue of C-I-L Oval.

Probably the greatest single peacetime use of black powder is in safety fuse and nothing seems likely to replace it for this purpose. In wartime, black powder performs a unique and important function and today it serves to ignite the propellant charge in many types of shells; it helps torpedoes and depth charges on their deadly journeys; it is in the fuse of anti-aircraft and other shells; and it is used in signal flares, saluting charges, primers, bursting charges and other types of ordnance.

Duke Receives New Brunswick Salmon

Fredericton, N.B.—On a visit to New York, the Duke of Windsor, Governor-General of the Bahamas, expressed a wish to serve a New Brunswick salmon at a dinner in Government House. A few days later, one of the largest fish ever taken from the early June run of salmon in the Saint John River was on its way to Nassau. It was an 18-pounder, hooked by L. Seaton Lindsay, vice president of the New York Life Insurance Co., in Long's Creek Pool, 20 miles above Fredericton. American business men who can get away for short holidays are getting good salmon fishing this year in the Saint John, the Miramichi and the Restigouche, reports the Canadian National Railways fish and game department.

More Egg Output To Meet Demand

A strong demand for eggs has been stimulated as a result of meat rationing. The major problem at present, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada, is to maintain the highest summer egg production in order to satisfy domestic demand and meet the British contract. The increase in Canadian consumption of eggs led to the request of the Minister of Agriculture on June 6, 1943, that Canadians voluntarily reduce their consumption of eggs during the next few weeks in order to help meet the United Kingdom needs. A decrease of two eggs per person per week has been suggested, and a decrease from 12 to 9 eggs a week has already been made effective in the rations of the armed forces in Canada. The Special Products Board purchases all quantities of eggs offered by producers at the announced prices per locality.

Mussolini Ousted, Italy Under Marshal Law

From around the world comes speculation and assertion that the exit of Benito Mussolini as premier of Italy has spelled out the prelude of a separate peace for Germany's Axis partner.

The Rome radio has announced the formation of a new cabinet, including the following members:

Chief of Government: Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

Foreign Minister: Raffaele Giuglia.

Minister of Interior: Bruno Forcari.

Minister of War: Antonio Siorce.

Minister of Navy: Rear Admiral Raffaele de Curten.

Minister for Italian Africa: Gen. Melchiale Gatta.

Minister of Justice: Gaetano Ozzeriti.

Minister of Finance: Domenico Bartolini.

Air: Renato Tandagli.

Education: Leonardo Severi.

Public Works: Alessandro Brizzi.

Communications: Gen. Frederico Amoroso.

Corporations: Leonardo Piccardi.

Popular Culture: Guido Rocco.

Currency: Giovanni Campora.

War Production: Gen. Carlo Savagasta.

Under Secretary to President of Council: Dr. Pietro Barato.

Announcement of the new cabinet, from which all of the former Fascist leaders were cleaned out, was preceded by a statement that "His Majesty the King Emperor, at the suggestion of the head of the government, the Prime Minister," had nominated the new cabinet members.

In capital after capital the reaction, although frequently only semi-official, was that a tottering Italy had moved one step nearer to an exit from the war, whether through early armistice or capitulation to marching Allied armies.

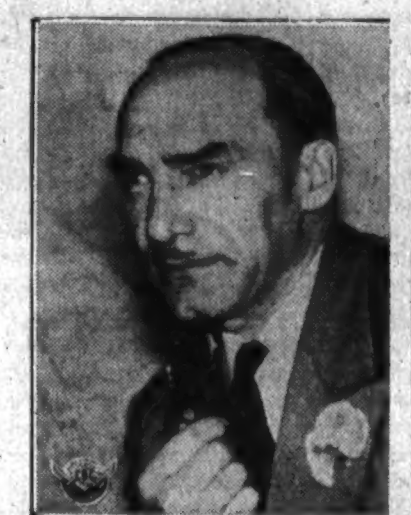

An R.A.F. station in Southeast England has completed a record "Wings-for-Victory" Week, reaching $511,217.16, although the target was only $13,320.00. The R.A.F. boys not only save the day for us but use their pay to buy more "Wings-for-Victory".

New Order Freezes Canned Goods

OTTAWA, July 26—The Prices Board today froze stocks of canned goods in the hands of canners and wholesalers. To assure supplies of canned fruits and vegetables for civilian and military requirements for next winter.

The board's order affects all canned fruit and vegetable products except canned soups, baby foods, jams, jellies and marmalades. Frozen and dehydrated products are not affected.

The board's announcement said that "under the plan the public will be asked to refrain from using canned fruits and vegetables during the season when fresh supplies are on the market."

"The action takes the form of withholding from the retail market the current pack of canned vegetables and fruit and the remainder of the 1942 pack now in the hands of canners and wholesalers, thus conserving the stocks during the period when supplies of fresh products are readily available," said the board statement.

The freezing order is effective immediately and applies to canners, wholesalers and those retailers who operate central warehouses or storage places separate from their retail stores.

A.M.A. Asks Refund Car License Fees

Acting promptly in the matter, the Alberta Motor Association last week made strong representations to the provincial government to refund a large portion of the license fees collected this year from car owners in "AA" and also in "A" special category.

In addition, the A.M.A. asked that a substantial reduction be made in motor taxation in 1944.

A resolution from the motor association, whose provincial directors held a meeting in Calgary last month was submitted to the cabinet. This pointed out that under wartime conditions, motorists were unable to obtain full use of their cars, due largely to gasoline and tire restrictions.

Also, it was stated that motor taxation in Alberta probably is higher and certainly as high as any other province in the dominion.

A strong case for motor taxation relief was made out on behalf of the A.M.A. Consideration was promised by the government.

Sept. Canning Sugar Coupons Now Valid

OTTAWA—Effective July 26, August and September canning sugar coupons are good for the purchase of sugar, the prices board announced in a statement which said the move was made to help women who wish to can fruit now available. Expiry date of the coupons remains unchanged.

"This does not mean that additional sugar for home canning will be available later in the season," a spokesman emphasized. "The move is made for the convenience of women who want to can the fruit that is available now, instead of spreading their canning activities throughout the whole summer. There is no present prospect of the present canning sugar allowance being increased."

New Steps and Coats All Over England

READING, ENG.—How comforting it is that nothing can interfere with the seasons! The whole world of Man may be rocking; but the peas have begun to sprout up through the stony ground of the allotment—and the beasts (whatever they may be) are eating the tops of—just as usual.

The Gardening Partner, his trusty old gardening suit reinforced with handsome leather patches, is seasonably gloomy and predicts the worst, as always. But there is life—real life—in the air; the birds are chirping and tweedling away in the trees and on housetops, and today the whole place had a lush green look after the rain.

Even the potatoes in their little sack behind my curtain are sprouting like mad. The most dreadful things which man can do cannot take away one's queer and secret joy in all this waking up, all this bursting out of hope—Yes, it's got me today. Some day the world will be sane again and people will be happy—if they have enough sense.

I guess we'll have to use our sense all the same. But I'm not one of those pessimists, for the war has shown us one thing: that human beings can, under pressure, show extraordinary courage, determination and gumption. Most curious of all, they can show unselfishness. That is going to be the snag, for it always is.

I've been talking to a man and his wife about it all: a couple who are just too old to be roped into anything and who are pretty cozy in their circumstances. He said, sitting back in his shoulderblades: "You can't cut out self interest. It's human nature." She says: "I think it's silly—all this worrying about future generations. What's it got to do with us?"

Went a Shade Sulky
I think I just went quiet and a shade sulky—which was cowardly of me, and I know it now. But that sort of talk staggers one—and when one is sitting there eating somebody else's food—well, it's a spot to be in, believe me. What I ought to have done is plain enough; I ought to have said: Yes, and it's just folks like you who're the bother, and who always will be. You're the kind to beware of, and if the rest of us really know what to do in the future we shall freeze you out. You won't be met at anybody's party; you won't have any nice snug billets on committees or councils. You'll be so darned uncomfortable socially that you'll realize you don't fit in anywhere."

Some day, without a doubt, I SHALL say something of the sort. So if you hear that I am an outcast, only able to move around under police escort, you'll know that the war is over and things have slipped back into the same dear old groove. But, all fooling apart, what can be done about people like that?

Personally, I think there should be a truce to politeness for a while; the rest of us—nearly all of us, happily—should be free to tell those people precisely what our opinion of them really is. You can imagine what we murmur among ourselves, can't you?

Keeping Engines Out of the Pink

The protection of war material from rust and corrosion while on its way to the fighting fronts is a new and important assignment for silica gel which, in granular form, resembles quartz pebbles and can absorb more than 45% of its weight in water, yet will still look and feel dry to the touch. The wartime applications of this interesting dehydration agent are described by Elizabeth McKechnie in the July issue of C-I-L Oval.

Silica gel packaged in cloth bags is enclosed within the moistureproof wrappings which cover valuable machinery such as airplane engines. The action of the silica gel in absorbing moisture, the cause of corrosion, is practically instantaneous and the effectiveness with which it is doing its job may be checked by noting the color of the crystals. When the relative humidity is less than 20% the crystals appear dark blue; between 20 and 30% they take on a pinkish tinge and as the humidity increases they become pinker and pinker. A similar service is performed by the replacement of engine spark plugs by Protek-Plugs—transparent, moisture impervious plastic containers filled with silica gel.

People with sons who are fighting, husbands who are tiring their almost aged bones in the Civil Guard, mothers and daughters who are rushing about in canteens or nursing. Yes, it's very odd, but I've noticed that the folk with the strongest self interest and instinct of self-preservation are invariably the least worth keeping alive. Well, when things begin to take shape again it might pay us to watch those folk. They will be up to their old tricks, given half a chance. Put Out of My Quarters

Today I am with my good friends who have half-a-dozen evacuees in their house; yet they have found a corner for me to work in, bless them. At my own lodgings there is now a sleeping war-worker: a girl who, this week, is on night shift, so I have crept out to rattle my typewriter elsewhere. War-workers are being billeted all over the place, and it's no good for your snug householder to object.

A vacant room means shelter for somebody, and the louder the objection the larger the war-worker—which is as it should be. But most folk are very decent about it; one woman tells me that her new billeted in "a real blessing" and looked after her as much as possible when she was ill. All this, as you can imagine, is making a tremendous difference to the average home which, in the old days, was likened to "an Englishman's castle."

The stranger is now well within the gates. All over England there are new steps on the stairs, strange coats hanging on the family pegs, alein sponges in the bath-tray. My private opinion is that it is an excellent notion and something that will do a power of good all round. We aren't an island people any more; there are no real islands nowadays; so we're learning to be good mixers instead.

My friends here are kindness itself to their London evacuees, taking no end of trouble over the children. One feels quite sure that those kiddies, no

Fight for Food Aided By Chemistry

In the winning of man's never-ending struggle for human food, through the stages of production, preparation and preservation, the appropriate weapons are supplied by the chemist and the chemical industry, writes R. M. Rowat in the July issue of C-I-L Oval.

Chemistry protects the seed and maintains soil fertility; it provides mineral supplements containing salt, lime, phosphates, iron and iodine that are fed to animals to reinforce feeds deficient in these essential elements; it contributes insecticides and other preventatives to assure the coming to maturity of field crops and livestock.

In the preparation of food, chemistry performs equal service—for example, in the supplying of special foods for yeast that is used in huge quantities in the baking of bread. Certain authorized and harmless dyes are used to color butter, cheese, jelly powders, cake icings, etc. In the processing of meat products such as ham and bacon, salt, saltpetre and nitrates are essential. Chemical cleaners with long names make short work of plant sanitation in an industry where cleanliness is of paramount importance.

The preservation of food until it is required for consumption is a big part of the food industry's job. Many tons of ammonia are used each year to manufacture ice and to achieve the low temperatures required for quick-freezing processes and for cold storage of perishables; chemical refrigeration is the basis of the modern packing house industry. Another chemical refrigerant, "Freon," is widely employed in the delivery and grocery store retelling of quick-frozen foods, and it is particularly adaptable to use in household refrigerators, locker plants and in food plant air conditioning systems.

Today, the packaging of food products, while chemical adhesives such as of particular importance in view of the wartime shortage of metals. By itself, or combined with paperboard, "Cellophane" is replacing metal cans in the packaging of many food products, while chemical adhesives such as sodium silicate, dextrins, etc. are also packaging essentials.

WAINWRIGHT, WEDNESDAY, JULY 29th, 1943

A WEEKLY EDITOR LOOKS AT Ottawa

Written specially for the weekly newspapers of Canada

Night of July 9th. While Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant, addressed a sparse and somnolent House on External Affairs, I had the feeling somehow that momentous things were in the making. The Prime Minister and Defence Minister Ralston, only two cabinet members present, were close in huddle in adjoining front benches. The P.M. looked grave and pre-occupied. He was making a pencilled draft, correcting, leaning over to check with Mr. Ralston, pencilling some more. At 8 o'clock next morning I heard his radio announcement to the nation that Canadians were fighting on the beach heads of Sicily. He may have been drafting that important speech as I watched, even while all of Canada was unaware of history-making events taking shape thousands of miles away. Surely they knew. What a secret to carry!

No stove league raised more fuss than sugar for canning. Housewives were definitely annoyed at the arbitrary allotment after counting cans in the basement. The Opposition started a warm but informative debate in the House on this matter and Finance Minister Flaherty said knowledge of available supplies were not known at the time. It was estimated 30 to 40 per cent of the population did their own canning. Lo and behold, actually 84% applied. Now, in Germany and the U.S.A., a flat allocation is made to each ration book holder, whether for canning or not. Canadians asked for 200 million pounds; only half that amount is available. Certainly there will be a different approach to the problem next year.

Most productive of argument speech in the House for some time—that of Justice Minister St. Laurent on the resolution for deferment or redistribution during the war. There was a distinct tenseness in the House. Party leaders and supporters approved, but nine Quebec members voted against putting the motion. There seemed unanimity with Mr. Goldwell the day must come when Canada will make decisions of this kind without reference to Imperial Parliament. That Canada by this time is wearing long pants, Mr. St. Laurent, who talks in clipped and measured tones, drew fire from quiet speaking Conservative House Leader Graydon for "sidestepping the resolution and injecting racial controversies." The minister claimed some people mongered that "that man in the Vatican" and Quebec clergy plotted to control the government of Canada; He said such talk was rampant. Saw the desirability of having our own flag and national anthem although that should not be pressed during the war. Claimed vigorously that Quebec was entitled to more equitable representation based on population. Mr. Graydon countered that raising of these side issues now was provocatively dangerous to national unity.

Who'd ever thought it! Research experts of the Department of Agriculture, although mum on the subject yet, are working on the production of rubber, resins and a superior kapok from species of the lowly milk weed. A group have returned here from the U.S.A., where they conferred with experts on progress made there along the same line. It appears it's getting into the post-experimental stage because I hear they are even working on harvesting methods and machinery to make the once-pest get to work for the war effort.

Members tell us the present long-drawn out session, which started in January, will probably wind up by the end of this month. The closely-printed official report of the House of Commons already runs well over 4000 pages. Which brings up press comment that the four federal by-elections will be a serious test of public opinion; may influence the government's decision re a general election, though there is no official peep about such a possibility. Ontario election; editors in the province showing definite party tendencies, but all agreeing there should be no apathy by the voters.

"Tl-General 1942" income tax form was a national headache. C. Fraser Elliot, commissioner for income tax told a newsmen here, at the height of the mob scene, he had high hopes for simplified income tax legislation in 1944 and with it a form that doesn't take a hopped-up chartered accountant to solve.

Probably more CWAAC's, etc., in Ottawa than any other single place. My observation here is that Canada can be proud of them. From what I've seen in the nation's capital, their bearing, conduct and deportment on the whole is excellent. It could be that some civilian women do not set the same standard.

Come prepared. — Probably tradition, but lady visitors to the House of Commons galleries without a hat have to spread a kerchief or piece of Kleenex over their heads before entering the august presence. Men, of course, uncover. Seems—and sometimes looks—a little silly.

Directed toward greater efficiency in manpower allocation it is announced here that a representative of National Selective service will be located at army reception centres to interview rejected applicants for enlistment. If sympathetically handled, in my opinion, this should help to put more round pegs in round holes of the agricultural and industrial war effort.

The Prices Board has granted an increase of 2-3 of a cent a dozen on clothes pins. Doesn't seem much, but what does it mean to Canadian housewives? Curious. I checked, found they use annually around one million 320 thousand gross or over 190 million pins to hang out the wash. 1941 census figures show that 82.5 percent of the population of Canada was born in this country, as against 77.9 in 1931. Of the 11,506,655 total, about 8.7% were from British countries, mainly the British Isles; European, 3.7%; United States, 2.7%; Asia born only 0.4%.

Farmettes by Gardiner (Agriculture): Movement of coarse grains to eastern provinces for feeding will double 1942 figures, and probably reach 100 million bushels. Government pays cost of freight from Ft. William east, thus they buy at Ft. Wm. prices. He also said the reason there will be no subsidy on corn this year is because fertilizer is short, has to be distributed largely in connection with grass and other grain crops.

Widely quoted in the press was an article on political union with the U.S.A., appearing in London Free Press. In brief it opposed union because "the British system is best; there is greater respect for law and order under it; there is a greater future under the British Commonwealth of Nations than becoming the 49th state in the Union."

In a spirit of humility but resolution, I thought, political leaders in the House referred to Dominion Day, 1943, as they were in session. Significant excerpts: Prime Minister King, "By our strength in war, and by our understanding and co-operation in peace, Canada can contribute mightily to the building of a better world."

Mr. Graydon, Progressive-Conservative: "—our armed forces, we owe them a debt of gratitude difficult to pay—resolve to pay them that debt, no matter how much it may be." Angus MacInnes, C.C.F. pinch-hitting: "If we are to have peace and harmony then we shall have to start thinking terms of world community, not Anglo-Saxon, not only of English speaking races, but of the whole world." J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit: "—cause for deep satisfaction that we have boundless responsibilities for feeding of the people of the world and for the rehabilitation of the world."

CONTINUATION OF NEW STEPS AND COATS

matter what the future holds for them, will never outgrow the influence of these kindly, well-bred hosts of theirs. Anything but the best will always seem a trifle shoddy to them after this environment in their most impressive years.

Real Unselfishness

The whole atmosphere of this house is one of real unselfishness, of the wish to help the other fellow in every possible way. It's wonderful. One may come around and wash clothes in their hot-water sink; a young soldier turns up one night a week and practices on their piano; the homeless are gladly welcome to any little privilege a home can offer; and they themselves spent most of their time in one room, loyally saving light and fuel.

The striking thing about it all is that they are much, much happier than those other two people who are so wrapped up in making as little difference as possible in their lives. Naturally they don't like having their existence disrupted—who would?—but I know they have the satisfaction of feeling that they're making a job of it as best they can.

Last week by means of working like mad in my spare time for a month, and by borrowing sketches from everybody who has one, I got together enough for an Art Section in a country 'show'. It was held in a little village near here, where nobody has much spare cash, and was in aid of the country hospital. We had a truly hectic Saturday afternoon in the school rooms, and many of the women worked like a fire-party from two till six, brewing rivers of tea, organizing, raffish and competitions, running the concert and selling every scrap of the stalls—though some of the articles, as usual, were of the what-on-earth-is-it variety.

Sixpence Admission

I sat in the Art Section, somewhat aloof, taking sixpence a time for admission, and quite a lot of people wandered in. (There is always something a trifle "wandering" about an Art Exhibition, isn't there? It is no hard to look as if one had come in on purpose.) And, believe it or not, that little fete netted over five hundred dollars. We should have considered ourselves lucky to get two hundred.

The organizer—a woman I had not known before—saw me sketching one

Saturday and we got into conversation. She asked me if I would help the little show, and thus I have made more friends. They have a really beautiful house in the village; two or three sixteenth-century cottages turned into one, and I was their guest for the night. All day long they are working at something: running Savings Groups, collecting for the Red Cross, holding the village effort together. All day folk are leaning their bicycles against the wall and knocking on the front door. No house in London was ever busier.

During our manoeuvres they were always on the lookout for bone-dry soldiers who could do with a cup of tea; and I guess plenty were bone-dry in that strenuous time. They were everywhere, dusty, dirty and workman-like, and one heard Canadian voices all over the place. They'll be coming home with the English tea habit firmly ingrained after this; and one of them said to me, having spent the winter here: "It'll take me some time to get used to the warmth again. I guess when I get back home." So don't take it too hard if, for the first fortnight, they show a disposition to loosen collars and open windows! It will pass.

Lodgers Face North

Incidentally, I have just loosened my own collar. The sun is pouring in through the open window—oh, lovely warmth! In my lodging I never see a gleam, for I face north, and it makes the winter a long bleak stretch. Some day, when all this is over, I'll have a sunny room again, maybe; but it is, I think, an axiom that The Lodgers Always Face North. And over here, one meets people every day who have been torn up by the roots; in fact it is the exception to come across somebody who has a settled home—or who is not working away from home.

Nothing less like the ordinary English habit of life can be imagined, yet folk have shaken down to it, and one hears very little complaint, considering the inconvenience that it is bound to be at times. It is a big thing to have food and shelter—and we know it; and a north room is better than the lee side of a hedge, even though there are days when there doesn't seem to be much to choose between them!

Winter is over at last and it was much easier than it might have been. We have our ups and downs but we have come thus far and we can go on. One knows it on a day like this—but then, we've always known it, down underneath, whatever the day was like.

Beauty for YOU

The Secrets of Good Looks by Barbara Lynn

AVOID OFFENDING!

No woman can afford to offend others by lack of personal daintiness, yet I'm afraid that too many of us are apt to be careless. In these hot summer days it is essential that we keep fresh and fragrant. Here are some timely hints to help you avoid offending others.

Unpleasant breath may be due to several causes, but the most frequent one is that particles of food lodge in the crevices of the teeth. Clean your teeth after every meal. You'll find dental floss a help, too.

Use a mouth-wash frequently. A simple and effective mouth-wash can be made at home by adding a few drops of myrrh to half a glass of water.

How's your hair? Is it dull and dirty? There's no excuse for it, you know! Shampoo often. Halo shampoo is simple, yet cleans beautifully, and you will be proud of your hair after using it. Don't spare the brush! Brush vigorously and often. Massage the hair occasionally with bay rum.

You are going to perspire, whether you like it or not! It is a natural part of the body functioning. But you can prevent perspiration odor. Wash your self frequently with gentle palmolive soap to ensure thorough cleansing, then dab some deodorant cream under the armpits. I cannot repeat these hints too often.

If you suffer from perspiring feet, rub them with vinegar, night and morning; then spray them with talcum.

Keep your clothes fresh and dainty especially underthings. Put clothes on a hanger immediately you doff them, and hang them in a draught of air, preferably in the open if possible.

My new Beauty Care booklet is full of helpful beautifying hints. Write for confidential beauty advice, and enclose five one-cent stamps for your copy of my booklet. Address: Miss Barbara Lynn, Box 75, Station B, Montreal, Que.

"I can't make out why you take your wife to night clubs."
"Hang it, they're the only places open by the time she's finished dressing!"

Boy: Mother, may I have a nickel for the old man who is crying outside?
Mother: Yes, dear, but what is he crying about?
Boy: He's crying, "Peanuts—five cents a bag!"

The Indian Air Force is growing at a remarkable rate. The number of men recruited in March was nearly 600 per cent greater than the average monthly recruitment over the whole of 1942. R.A.F. officers training Indian recruits say that not only the quantity, but also the quality of the Indian airman has improved. An enemy on the door-step has a great vitalizing power in every country!

Many listeners have expressed a desire to learn more about the actual set-up of Canadian radio. They may be discussed in three parts:

First is network and national broadcasting. This is controlled in Canada by the Government, and is a complete Government monopoly. No network may be set up, nor used, without consent and supervision of the Canadian Government. It also operates a few of its own stations.

Second feature of Canadian broadcasting is the basic station. This is a community-owned broadcasting station, selected by the Government network monopoly to carry its programs in that particular community. Such a station carries programs designated by the network, and is not responsible for the contents of these, though sometimes it takes the blame from listeners who don't know this background.

The third factor is the non-basic community station, which may take or be required to take, certain broadcasts of unusual immediate importance from the network, but is not regularly affiliated with it. Your license fee goes entirely to the support of the Government network monopoly.

No part of it comes to the community stations, which depend entirely upon advertising revenue for their support. This Canadian system is a cross between the British system of broadcasting—where all stations are Government owned, and there is no choice of programs—and the American stations, which have Government control and supervision, but no actual ownership, and offer the widest listening choice in the world. A very similar system to that of Canada's is in operation in Australia. The New Zealand system runs somewhat closer to the American pattern, and the South African set up to the British pattern.

During the 20 years between this war and the last one, the average consumption of protective foods in Britain increased by roughly about 50%, with a corresponding improvement in national health and physique. Gross nutritional diseases, which had been prevalent in industrial towns, almost completely disappeared. Infant mortality rate and deaths from tuberculosis, which are profoundly affected by the state of nutrition, fell by about 50% and children leaving school in 1938 were between two and three inches taller than their parents at the same age. The chief protective foods are milk and dairy products, eggs, fruit, vegetables and meat.

Last year, nearly a million and a half Canadian hogs, in the form of bacon, travelled over Canadian National lines on the way to Great Britain. Their weight was 88,985 tons, an increase of almost 40 per cent over the previous year. More than 2,500 refrigerator cars were used.

At Jamshedpur, in the valley of the Ganges, 200,000 Indian steelworkers are making a wonderful record of production of war materials.

SOLDIER of the SOIL

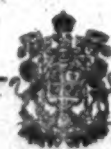

THIS year the Canadian Farmer urgently needs help. He needs your help to produce the food so necessary for victory. Many thousands of farm workers are serving in the Forces, so that the farmer—the Soldier of the Soil—is shorthanded, but shorthanded as he is, he is called upon to produce more food than ever before. Food is one of the most powerful weapons of war. Grains, bacon, dairy products, eggs, beef, fruit, vegetables—FOOD to feed our armies, our allies and our people we must have.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

You may be a school teacher, student, business or professional man, an office or store clerk—no matter what you are, if you have a few hours, days, weeks, or months of free time this summer, you can do your country and the farmer a great and patriotic service by helping out on the farm. You may be inexperienced, but you still can help. You will find work on the farm healthy and congenial. It will give you the satisfaction of feeling that you have brought Victory nearer.

What you should do NOW!

Consult any special local committee or office established to deal with farm labour placements in your city or town; or Write the Director of the Dominion-Provincial Farm Labour Program at the Capital of your province; or Get in touch with your nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

C.P.R. RUSHES BACON TO BRITAIN

Many millions of pounds of Canadian bacon for embattled Britain have been handled in Canadian Pacific Railway overhead refrigerator cars, similar to the one being iced in this picture, it is revealed by H. J. Main, general superintendent of transportation, whose department directs these precious loads needed by fighting men and civilians. Particularly suited for continuing the cure of bacon in transit there are 360 of these cars of a type pioneered on the North American continent by the Canadian Pacific seven years ago. This constitutes the largest overhead-type refrigerator fleet in Canada and the United States, with all of the overhead cars running as "bacon specials" while 3,646 refrigerator cars of other types look after the handling of the fresh meat, fish, fruits and vegetables needed for a healthy Canada.

For Farm Boys

Farming requires a wide variety of skills and a lot of knowledge. The farmer must be a mechanic to get the best out of machinery, a botanist to recognize weeds and mixtures in his crops, a breeder to select the best sires and dams, a nutritionist to fit his stock for the market economically, a pathologist to recognize and control diseases in his crops and livestock, and so on. In addition, he must be a business man and a useful member of his own community.

Our colleges of agriculture have done wonders in training men who wish to devote their lives to research and experimentation; but this is not all. They also provide courses for those intending to farm. These courses do not pretend to teach a boy how to farm, but they do teach him a lot about farm problems that cannot be learned at all, or only with great difficulty, elsewhere. In addition to much useful knowledge of crop production, livestock management, and agricultural engineering, the student mixes with farm boys from all over his province, and learns something of their problems. He returns to his farm a better farmer and a more useful citizen.

Agricultural training is offered at the School of Agriculture, Olds, Alberta; the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon; and the University of Manitoba, Winnipeg. Write to these institutions for information on School of Agriculture courses and short courses in special subjects. Extra copies of this article with additional information may be obtained from line elevator agents.

Mr. Armand LaFrance, accompanied by his sister Mrs. P. Chartier and her daughter Pauline, motored to Calgary the end of last week.

Father Ehmann made a hurried trip to Saskatoon last Wednesday, due to news of the serious illness of his father.

Mr. Alec (Buster) Gilbert is here from Edmonton to spend a holiday visiting relatives and friends in Hope Valley.

This week sees Mr. E. Guttridge added to the staff at the Treasury Branch.
